This May, the Photographic Resource Center celebrates student work from a variety of Boston area photography programs. After the resounding success of last year's efforts, the PRC is proud to showcase this regional talent by bringing back the popular Student Exhibition. While the previous incarnation featured a selection juried by PRC staff (1995-1998), like last year, the 2003 PRC Student Exhibition features work selected by our Institutional Plus Member schools. The PRC is pleased to welcome Newbury College, Mass Art and UMass, Lowell to this year's program.

Institutional Plus Members are colleges, universities, and professional programs that support the PRC in exchange for membership benefits for their students. Often, these students, professors, and staff use the PRC as an extension of the classroom—visiting exhibitions, attending lectures, and using the library. The Annual Student Exhibition provides these institutions' students a vehicle through which to voice their talent. It also serves as a glimpse into the creative minds of the future. For more information about becoming an Institutional Plus Member, please contact the PRC at 617-975-0600.
